Findings

Quality of Education at Higher Education Institutions is maintained through Internal Quality Assurance Cell (IQAC). It consists of various stakeholders, like- head of the institution, senior administrators, teachers, management representatives, and local committee members. In this extensive investigation establishment of IQAC in Bachelor of Education (B.Ed.) colleges located in Western Uttar Pradesh (U.P.). has been thoroughly explored. This investigation highlights several crucial aspects of quality assurance and improvement in these institutions. Positive indicators of awareness and recognition of IQAC's role among students necessitate the need to improve accessibility of information regarding IQAC. Presence of inconsistencies in student feedback and perceptions implies that targeted improvements in these aspects can further enhance the overall student experience. Ensuring the efficacy of online teaching and addressing infrastructure-related issues hold immense significance in maintaining the educational quality. Finally, augmenting communication and promotion of IQAC initiatives can foster greater engagement and collaboration among all stakeholders. Addressing these findings can lead to an overall enhancement of the standard of education in B.Ed. colleges situated in Western U.P., which can ultimately benefit the students and the broader educational community.
