About the Conference

The conference on the theme Green and Clean Delhi is jointly organised by Haryali Centre for Rural Development, a research based Non-profit organization in Delhi and the Centre for the Study of Social Inclusion which is an interdisciplinary teaching cum research Centre in Jamia Millia Islamia (Central University), New Delhi.

This conference on Green & Clean Delhi is being organized to discuss the challenges and prospects of sustainable development in Delhi.

Delhi being the capital city of India, is labelled as one of the most polluted capital city in the world, though it's past was green and conserved as evident by it's rich heritage & surroundings. Yamuna river & Aravalli range of mountains have been the two most prominent natural features of Delhi's topography. Thus, to understand this changing scenario, the need of the hour is for actionable recommendations.

This conference aims to bring stakeholders from different fields to collaborate, discuss & offer cost-effective sustainable solutions for Green and Clean Delhi. This may provide guidance on best practices to be adopted.

This conference will be beneficial for eliminating barriers towards achieving sustainable development. It will also enable planners to identify and formulate inclusive development policies.

Target Stakeholders

- Government Officials
- Policymakers
- Subject-Experts
- Professors & Academicians
- Industry Professionals
- Representatives of RWAs & SHGs
- Research Scholars
- Students

The conference will build a communication platform for stakeholders in order to recognize issues, find common grounds for action and build a sense of participation to implement their decisions. This conference will attempt to formulate useful guidelines on sustainable development and further translate it into achievable goals for Green & Clean Delhi.

By offering the stakeholders an ideal setting to share their research findings, best practices, and emerging trends across themes that align with the goal of achieving sustainable development, this conference will serve as a forum for innovative and fresh ideas to be heard and explored.

The conference aims to assign roles and responsibilities to various participating stakeholders involved in formulating & implementing the policies for sustainable development so that the vision for Green & Clean Delhi is achieved.
