E-LITERATURE

Explorations in Literary Creativity

Amira Hanafi

Writer in residence,
Coastal Carolina University, USA

Amira Hanafi is a poet and artist whose works have been shown online and in offline exhibitions around the world, most recently at the 5th Casablanca Biennale curated by Christine Eyene. They create systems, games, and interactive digital works to bring different voices and characters into conversation with each other. Amira is the author of the books Forgery (Green Lantern Press, 2011) and Minced English (2010), a number of limited edition artist's books, and several works of electronic literature. Her transdisciplinary project, A dictionary of the revolution (2014-18), won Denmark's Public Library Prize for Electronic Literature, the New Media Writing Prize, and an Artraker Award. Amira is currently Writer in Residence at Coastal Carolina University in the US.
